ANALYSIS OF THE PRESERVATION OF HISTORICAL AND CULTURAL HERITAGE IN UZBEKISTAN

Since independence in 1991, Uzbekistan has declared the protection and preservation of the historical and cultural heritage as a fundamental principle of its public policy. In order to secure its rich ancient history, Uzbekistan pursues a policy of protecting its cultural and historical heritage, which is reflected in the Constitution of the Republic. On this basis, Uzbekistan is striving to use all relevant international and regional instruments recommended by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) and other international organizations.

With Uzbekistan’s cultural policy which aims to preserve the tangible and intangible heritage of the country, a number of historical and cultural sites such as Samarkand, Shakhrisabz, Bukhara and Khiva are included in the UNESCO World Heritage List. The cultural space of Boysum district, as well as Shash Katta Ashula (original genre of the art of singing in the Uzbek traditional music) and Katta Ashula (original genre of the art of singing in the Uzbek traditional music) were included in the UNESCO Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity. Based on the proposals of the Government of Uzbekistan, under the auspices and with the participation of the UNESCO, following anniversaries were widely celebrated: the 600th anniversary of Mirzo Ulugbek (1994), the 660th anniversary of Amir Temur (1995), the 2500th anniversary of Bukhara and Khiva (1997), the 2250th anniversary of famous muhaddith Imam Bukhari and the 1200th anniversary of Ahmad Fargoni (1998), the 1000th anniversary of the national epic “Alpomish” (1999), the 800th anniversary of Jalolidin Mangabergi (1999), the 1300th anniversary of Abu Mansur al-Maturidi and the 910th anniversary of Burhan al-Din al-Marghini (2000), the 2700th anniversary of the holy Zoroastrian book “Avesta” (2001), the 2500th anniversary of Termez (2002), the 900th anniversary of Abdulkhokil Gijduvon (2003), the 660th anniversary of U beydullah Ahhr (2004), the 1000th anniversary of Mannun Academy (2006), the 2700th anniversary of Karshi city (2006), the 2700th anniversary of Samarkand and the 2000th anniversary of Marghilan (2007) and 2200th anniversary of Tashkent city (2009).

On the other hand, specific institutions have been established aiming to preserve the historical and cultural heritage of the country. For example, the International Institute for Central Asian Studies (IICAS) of the UNESCO was established in August 1995 in Samarkand on the initiative of the first President of Uzbekistan, Islam Karimov. The main objectives of IICAS include developing and supporting the interdisciplinary scientific co-operation on the history and culture of Central Asia. For more than twenty years, the IICAS has undertaken many significant events dedicated to the preservation of the historical and cultural heritage of Central Asia. Currently, in addition to the countries of Central Asia, the Republic of Korea, China, Pakistan, Azerbaijan, Iran and Turkey are the participating members of the Institute.

It is noteworthy that there are over 100,000 ancient manuscripts of great historical and cultural value in Uzbekistan. In this regard, the Center of Oriental Manuscripts named after Abu Rayhan al-Bruni under the Tashkent State Institute of Oriental Studies was established in 2014. The Center owns the largest oriental and Islamic manuscript collection in Central Asia and one of the largest in the world with more than 65,000 manuscripts and lithographic books. The Center’s collection is also included in the UNESCO World Heritage List. The manuscripts of the main collection are written in Uzbek, Arabic, Persian, Tatar, Urdu and other languages and devoted to a wide range of topics including astronomy, mathematics, physics, chemistry, geography, medicine, history, philosophy, philology, literature and religious sciences. The experts of the Center are engaged in in-depth studies to work on and protect the priceless monuments of the ancient litteracy. Recently, the Center has completed the joint project with the Gerda Henkel Foundation (Germany) on the creation of an electronic card catalog in English, which will enable the experts around the world to receive information about a particular manuscript.

Despite the fact that Uzbekistan is one of the world leaders in terms of the amount of architectural epigraphy, these inscriptions have not been studied and published until recently. Therefore, in order to provide a comprehensive analysis and synthesis of epigraphy of all architectural monuments in the country, the Government of Uzbekistan together with the UNESCO launched the project “The Architectural Epigraphy of Uzbekistan”. As a result of years of work within the framework of the project, the inscriptions on the world famous architectural monuments of Samarkand such as Shah-i-Zinda complex, Amir Temur Mausoleum, Bibi Khanum Mosque, and epigraphic inscriptions of the monuments of Khiva (13 architectural complexes, including burial inscriptions of Pahlawan Mahmud complex) have been explored and partially published. For instance, on October 17, 2016, the UNESCO Office in Uzbekistan hosted a presentation of 12 recently published albums dedicated to epigraphic inscriptions on architectural landmarks of Karakalpakstan, Andijan, Bukhara, Kashkadarya, Navoi, Namangan, Surkhandarya, Fergana, Khorezm regions and Tashkent city, as well as two albums on historical architectural complexes of Samarkand, namely, Registan and Shah-i-Zinda. The albums are published in Uzbek, Russian and English by Uzbekistan Today News Agency. The series of books represent the first phase of the project and works on the project that cover the remaining unexplored epigraphic inscriptions throughout Uzbekistan will be continued. In total, 25 volumes are planned to be published.

Another ambitious project for the preservation of the historical and cultural heritage of Uzbekistan is “Cultural Heritage of Uzbekistan in the collections of the world”, which is carried out on the initiative of Uzbekistan Today News Agency with the support of the President of Uzbekistan, Shavkat Mirziyoyev. To date, four volumes of richly illustrated book-albums have been prepared. These book-albums are devoted to items which were found in Uzbekistan and stored now in the collections of various museums and individuals’ collections. These masterpieces which were created by ancient and modern masters throughout the ages, epochs and civilizations, reflect the unique heritage of material and artistic culture of Uzbekistan. There is no doubt that this project will significantly contribute to the popularization of the historical and cultural heritage of Uzbekistan.

The intention of the Government of Uzbekistan to preserve the historical and cultural heritage of the country is evident in the current initiatives of the President-elector of Uzbekistan, Shavkat Mirziyoyev. For instance, during the 43rd Session of the Council of Foreign Ministers of the Organization of Islamic Cooperation (OIC) on October 18, 2016, the head of the country proposed to establish both the Imam Bukhari International Research Center in Samarkand focused on studying on religious and spiritual heritage of the Islamic thinkers and the Department of the Islamic Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (ISESCO) under the Tashkent Islamic University.

Thus, analysis of Uzbekistan’s public policy in the field of culture shows that the process of preservation of the historical and cultural legacy, cultural traditions and spiritual heritage of the country is under way. The Uzbek experience on the issue of careful preservation, enrichment and promotion of its national cultural heritage that contribute to the advancement of historical science of Uzbekistan should be studied for further application in other countries of the region.
